Flying to Portugal

The closest airport is Francisco Sá Carneiro international airport in Oporto, located some 70 km to the north of Aveiro. Portela international airport in Lisbon is located 250 km to the south of Aveiro.

From Oporto to Aveiro

The trip between the airport and the railway station (called Porto-Campanhã), which has direct rail connections to Aveiro, can be made by taxi for around 20€ and takes around 30 minutes. A less expensive alternative to reach the Porto-Campanhã railway station is to use the Metro, which has a terminal at the airport. The trips between the airport and the railway station take about 32 minutes and the ticket costs 1,85€ (Z4 ticket).

The train journey to Aveiro takes between 40 minutes and 1h15, depending on the type of train used. There are regular trains to Aveiro from Porto. Train Timetables www.cp.pt

From Lisbon to Aveiro

The simplest form of transport to Aveiro is by train from Lisboa-Oriente railway station. To get the train station, the taxi ride takes about 10 minutes and costs around 10€, but there are buses too (lines 5 and 44). Train timetables – www.cp.pt

To reach the University Campus

Aveiro railway station is located about 20 minutes walking distance or 5-minute taxi ride from the University Campus. To reach the Campus you can also use the bus (green line) which departs at regular intervals from outside the railway station.
